The scoretions are offensive; causing a bad breath; the voice is thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of the smell is lessened or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place.—Another common and important symptom of Catarrh is, that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a thick or slimy mucus, which has fallen down from the head during the night. A Scandalous Case—Alarming Evi-dences of Demoralization.

(From The Chicago Times.)

The deplorable state of public morals is a daily subject of solicitude. Never before in the history of this country was there so much cause for public apprehension and alarm. On every side, turn where you will, are seen evidences of vice, corruption and moral deformity, existing in the highest stations of life, as well as in the humble homes of the poor and unpretending. The contemplation of this constantly increasing demoralization will afford much food for serious thought in the minds of the philosopher, the philanthropist and the divine, and the cause of it may afford a not unfitting subject for reflection to all. In almost every household there is a skeleton of mis-ery and wrath. Honor appears but a cloak for deceit, and religion but the mantle to hide the iniquity of the wearer. Crime rides triumphantly in a brazen chariot, and virtue has fled at the voice of the tempter. Remorse sits enthroned where contentmen was wont to dwell, and evil dwells in the halls of legislation, in the marts of traffic, and in the social circle. That these remarks are applicable to the whole people must not be supposed; but that they apply too generally is a fact not to be disputed. War is not more exhaustive of the material and physical power of a nation than of its virtue and its morals. The unsettled condition of social relations opens wide the door for the entrance of the tempter and seducer;

of the few, and poverty in the many paves the way for crime.

The unwritten history of civil war would make volumes more sickening and terrible in its details of treachery, misery, want and crime than all the recorded deeds of the most infamous of its participants. A moral pestilence is brooding over us, and the torch of social reform must be lighted

the inordinate greed for gain stifles the voice of honor; power defies justice; profligacy is the result of sudden wealth in the hands in the land. A most revolting exhibition of moral de-formity was brought to light before Justice Brown on Saturday—a case in which a husband and father appeared as the paramour of a faithless wife and the wronged hus-band appeared as the companion of prostitutes. About a year ago Mr. Thomas Hansen enlisted in the army, leaving in this city a young and pretty wife. He returned about two weeks since to find her dishonored, and reveling in the arms of an-other. During his absence the false one and violated the sacred marriage vows, and become the companion of the lewd and deprayed. This unwelcome intelligence was conveyed to Hansen by an abandoned female whose superior charms had also attracted the attention of the equally guilty

Mr. Thomas Hansen, who is a very goodlooking young man, and in personal ap-pearance quite attractive, was not much grieved at the conduct of his wife, and imnediately found ample comfort while consorting with Miss Luella Howard, a fascinating cyprian, an inmate of a disreputable house on State street. Mrs. Hansen soon learned of the companionship which Mr. H. was enjoying, and, becoming jealous of the more attractive rival, threatened dire vengeance upon the head of Miss Luella. In accordance with that threat she, with several chosen female companions, visited the house of her rival and there most unceremoniously commenced to beat, and threatened to kill, Miss Luella. Other boarders coming to the rescue, the life of the assaulted was saved, and the assailants were ejected from the house. For threats there made Mrs. Hansen was ordered to give bail in the sum of $300 for her appearance for trial in the Recorder's court.

Here enters the paramour of Mrs. Hansen, in the person of Mr. Garrett Davis, a well-known business man of the city, who became surety for the further appear-ance of the defendant. Mr. Davis is a married man. Mrs. Hansen now threatened to have her husband and Miss Howard arrest-ed for fornication, while Miss Howard in turn threatens the arrest of Mr. Davis and Mrs. Hansen for adultery. For fear that the amiable and just intent of either party may be altered, would it not be well for the authorities to take the matter in hand? Stay-at-Home Republicans will now Volunteer.

[From The Chicago Times.] The present condition of the war is very favorable to the filling of the remainder of our quotas under the last call. It will stimulate volunteering wonderfully to know that the fighting is about over. Under the extraordinary combination which affords high bounties, and a soldiering trip with-out any danger of getting hurt, we should not be at all surprised to see some of our valorous stay-at-home Republicans enlist-ing for the war. There are a great many of that political frith who are intensely in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war, and have only refrained from going them-selves through a considerate apprehension that they might get hurt. We think that our ward committees may even lower the bounties and still a great many of these gentlemen will be willing to go, so desirous are they of putting down rebellion. Let Johnston be disposed of, let the last of the rebel armies be swept from the field, and then, even without the stimulus of bounties, the patriotism of our Abolition fellow-citizens would be excessive. A quota of almost any size could be filled at the shortest possible notice. They would "rally round the flag" in thousands. Let the rebels in the South only lay down their arms and there is not an Abolitionist in Chicago but would respond with alacrity in Chicago but would respond with alsority to an appeal for men to fill up the ranks. If Mr. Lincoln wishes his Republican friends in Chicago and elsewhere to fill up the armies, he has only to announce that the fight is over. By doing this he can get one hundred or five hundred or nine bundred thousand "more," or just as many "more" as he wants. There is not an Abolitionist in the land but will rush eagerly forward to shed his last drop of blood the moment the rebels quit fighting. Therefore, as the rebels in arms disappear in the South, recruiting becomes more brisk in South, recruiting becomes more brisk in the North. Get Johnston out of the way, capture Mobile and exterminate Forrest, and the quotas will all be filled without a Professor Shepherd, of New Haven, Conn., re-ports: "I consider it eminently oil-producing land. The oil-bearing shales undertie it extensively, and the long lines of carburetted hydrogen, or illuminat-

The prodigious amount of bituminous and cannel coal, iron ore, limestons and fire clays embodied in the high hills on your property, the tops and slopes of which are covered with an extraordinery growth of white oak and other heavy timbers, add immensely to its value."
